Helen Kim, Money Relationship Mentor and Certified Financial Counselor, will be interviewing me this Thursday evening by phone, in New York. I plan on offering some Feng Shui MONEY SECRETS that I haven't given away before. Only those on the call will be given a special offer as a VDay gift.

The Wall Street Journal just ran an article that stated,
"In Hong Kong, masters of feng shui routinely weigh in on money matters. And after a year of huge financial losses, they're finding an especially receptive audience."

When you sign up for the teleclass you will also start to get Helen Kim's amazingly informative newsletter (of course this is optional). It will help you help yourself to recognize that you hold the answers to your relationship to money. Helen assists her clients to see when they're being held hostage to money, by either being unable to spend it or by overspending. Helen is masterful at sensitively working with clients to help them break the cycle of debt they may find themselves in.

Hope to 'See Ya' on the call.

Make the Most of your Relationships and Financial Opportunities this Year

Whether you're single or in a relationship there are always ways to improve your situation.

I am so thrilled when a client (and you know who you are) calls to say they are getting married, that they've gotten back together with their spouse or that they're pregnant.

Make sure your environment supports the things that you're looking to change, in your relationships, finances and health.

Consider a space clearing and blessing ritual for your home or office - it will brighten the environment in a way that no amount of cleaning can do and contributes greatly to the effectiveness of feng shui adjustments.

ADVICE IS CHEAP

I can't resist Andy Warhol's words, "You have to be willing to get happy about nothing." This is useful advice at any time and the core of every spiritual practice.

At this point in time I feel it is particularly important to remember that regardless of circumstances, we always have the option to be happy.

I know from experience that this is easier said than done. I also know that I am responsible for how I feel and act. These days given the options, I'm willing to get happy about nothing!

I hope you'll join me and Helen Kim on February 12th (details to the left). I guarantee that if nothing else we'll be happy. And the advice will be so cheap, it will be FREE!

Sending hearts and flowers for your happiness,
Judith Wendell
